

To whom it may concern

Your enquiry regarding “conflict minerals”

Dear Sir or Madam,

We do not wittingly or knowingly use so-called “conflict materials”.

If at all, minerals originating from conflict-affected countries may at most be contained in products sourced from our subcontractors, for example in electronic components.

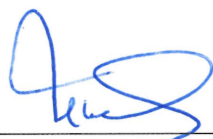

As you are no doubt aware, there is no direct legal obligation on us to provide information under the “Dodd-Frank Act”. Moreover, in our opinion, it is not currently possible to manage or control the supply chain in the manner potentially required by the “Dodd-Frank Act” at a reasonable cost and effort and with meaningful results.

However, it goes without saying that we sympathise with the constructive goals of this legislation and that we wish to support you, our customer, as a matter of principle. We are therefore in close contact with the relevant associations, who are working on practicable, reasonable and proportionate solutions for our industry. In doing so, we are also bearing in mind EU Regulation 2017/821 as adopted by the European Commission.

We will monitor developments in this area accordingly and remain

Yours faithfully,
LTN Servotechnik GmbH

Otterfing, 8 April 2019

Alexander Tewes, Managing Director

Michael Gottschalk, Managing Director